The Way Evolutionists Do

Dr. Frank L. McVey, President of the Kentucky University, of Kentucky according to the Lexington Herald has telegraphed various educators and preachers of the country for an expression of opinion on a bill in the Kentucky General Assembly prohibiting the teaching of Evolution in the public schools of the state.

The truth of the matter is, there is not now, nor has there ever been any such bill before the State Legislature, and nobody knows this better than the President of the Kentucky University.

There is now a statutory law in Kentucky which prohibits the teaching of the bible in the public schools of this State, which bible teaches that man was created by God in His image.

There is now being taught in some of our schools and colleges, particularly Kentucky University, supported by the state, a theory that man evolved from beasts of the fields. It is conclusive that when a person believes that he originated from a brute, he does not believe the teaching of the Bible that he originated from God.

Since the Bible cannot be taught in the schools it is equally fair that guess theories that contradict the bible should not be. Looking to this end there is a bill before the Legislature to prohibit the teaching in our State schools the theory of evolution as it relates to the origin of man.

Lovers of the bible want the word on an equal footing with infidelity. The Times thinks it should be. Perverters of general facts as well as bible facts do not think so.

The Light Plant Damaged

The new light plant for Clay City was damaged in shipping, particularly the switchboard which was broken when it arrived. An attempt to use it any way resulted in it catching fire and burning all the insulation from the wiring. A new board was telegraphed for Saturday and as soon as this arrives continuous service will be resumed. This misfortune is very disappointing to operators as well as the consumers of light, but it cannot be helped.

Clay City-Winchester Bus Line

The long looked for bus line between Clay City and Winchester has been put on the road and is making good. Mr. C. B. Mize, the proprietor of the line, takes extra pains in making these trips. He leaves each morning after the train arrives from Winchester—about 9:30—and returns in time to connect with the afternoon down train.

To Repair Bridge

Judge Derickson and some of the Magistrates were here last week looking after the safety of the county bridge leaving town over the new road. They found it in a very bad condition and will repair it at once.

Four Moonshiners Arrested

James G. Fugate, a constable, of Powell county, Russ Sizemore, chief police, of Irvine, and deputy marshals, Green Colby, Jesse Hamilton, Geo. Briniger, last Thursday raided three moonshine stills in Estill county, on Miller's creek and arrested three men, on the Miller, Prewitt, Goff lease which Mr. Fugate is agent over, and destroyed four gallons of moonshine whiskey. Two hundred gallons of beer and cut the still into pieces. The shiners arrested at this still were: C. T. Whisman, Ova Ohair and Leonard Arnold.

Still No. 2 was on the property of R. L. Thacker and cut into pieces by the officers and Thacker arrested, but did not find any beer or whiskey at the still. The shiners all confessed but Arnold and were fined before Judge Sam Hurst the sum of $150.00 and sixty days in jail for moonshining and $50.00 and ten days in prison for concealed weapons. This is the biggest moonshine raid yet made in Estill county.

More Legume Crops

More legume crops on Kentucky farms is the one big hope in economically building up the State's soils to a higher state of fertility, according to recommendations being made by soils and crop specialists at the College of Agriculture. Legumes, such as clover, add to the fertility of the soil by drawing nitrogen from the air while non-legume crops, such as timothy hay, wheat and corn, draw on the soil for all their plant food, according to specialists. The extensive use of non-legume crops over a long period of years has proved a heavy drain on the fertility of Kentucky soils, they say.

In pointing out the importance of legumes in a system of crop improvement, the specialists are showing farmers that more than two-thirds of the plant food contained in clover is taken from the air. Every ton of this crop takes only $3.00 worth of plant food from the soil while the remaining $8.00 worth which it contains, is taken from the air.

Spring Announcement

H. F. Hillenmeyer & Sons, Kentucky's leading nurserymen have their usual Spring announcement in this issue of the Times. ## Trip Through Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company's Plant

Showing various ways and means as to how the Goodyear casing, known as the Diamond tread, are treated so as to make them one of the best tires for the money on market. Being a dealer, I had the pleasure of being a guest at luncheon, and after lunch a lecture accompanied by a stereopticon thrown on the screen of Tires from the rubber tree to the Ford.

So when any and all need to RE-TIRE I will appreciate caring for you.

Joe Mountz, (Dealer.)

Mountz Sells Tractor

Joe Mountz reports the sale of a Fordson to Mr. T. C. Hall, of Rosslyn. Mr. Hall is an up-to-date farmer and has been storing lime stone rock these winter days getting ready to put the Fordson to pulverizing it as soon as it can be delivered. As a Fordson has been on Mr. Hall's farm demonstrating with his pulverizer he knows what he is getting, also he has had the pleasure of seeing the plows turn the soil. Here's hoping that others take advantage of a cheaper and more practical way of farming.
